IN AUGUST.

Through the heat of the afternoon,
The dusty bee's loud bassoon
Comes drowsily to my ear;
While the hollyhocks tall,
By the garden wall,
Seem bending their heads to hear.

The west wind goes murmuring by,
The crescent moon swings in the sky,
Tipping its golden horn,
As I lie in my hammock light,
And dream of the future bright,
And happy days agone.

The sun in armor of gold,
Like a knight in days of old,
Sinks to his rest,
And life so happy and bright
Seems tinged with as rosy a light
As gleams from the west.

A RESTING PLACE.

'Tis but a little way at best—
The road winds down a sloping hill—
Across the bridge, beyond the mill,
You'll find the mile-stone where we rest.
And there the sweetest daisies grow,
With stainless crowns, and hearts of gold—
The clematis her blooms unfold,
Tossing her clinging arms, to throw
A net-work where the alders show.
And there the pollen-dusted bees,
Hum softly where the clover looks;
And singing birds, and running brooks,
Unite with Nature's symphonies.
How many weary souls have turned
Aside, to find this resting place,
And better far than all, have learned,
What none but heathen hearts have spurned,
The power of God, in Nature's face.

"ROLL THE ROCK AWAY."

"Angel, roll the rock away,"
Let this be our prayer to-day,
In our souls Hope clearly shine—
We would walk in light divine;
Open every heart of sin,
Let the dawning enter in,
If no more than one pale ray—
"Angel, roll the rock away!"

Long enough has midnight gloom,
In the human heart found room,
Ignorance shut out the light—
Made the past a cheerless night;
Now appears the narrow road,
Leading to the mount of God,
Love and peace cheer all the way—
"Angel, roll the rock away!"

Saturday Evening, August 11.

With the last slanting golden rays of the sun glinting the landscape of the further shore, trembling on the placid waters of Penobscot bay, and lighting up the cloud ranges with tints an artist might envy, the day closes and evening sets in at Northport, fittingly ending a week of magnificent weather by the sea shore.

Saturday evening here seems to be the complement of the week, a period when all events and acts center and meet and round up the season for the time. It is the time when there are more arrivals of fathers, husbands, brothers and friends than at any day in the week, and many a pleasant group gathers around the supper table.

As dusk draws near the boat from Bangor comes panting in to the wharf loaded down with humanity from up river towns where the heat has been unbearable, and for a half hour a scene of bustle and activity reigns till the passengers and their belongings are duly homed and cared for in various tents and cottages which omnibus like seem always capable of holding one more. The cottage illuminations are also at their height and the Grounds and adjoining shores look beautiful in their gala dress of innumerable lanterns, lights and transparencies flashing out their colored beams through the darkness, till the whole scene looks from the water like a glimpse into fairy land.

There is a new moon, a softened light and languorous feeling pervades the atmosphere; lovers arm in arm stroll along the shores and avenues; a fleet of boats are floating on the placid waters; seekers for quiet are seated here and there in silence and solitude; the joyous laughter and voices of light-hearted youth rings out upon the air, and a sense of peace, quietude and security broods over all the scene.

By and by, as the evening draws on, the lights go out one by one; the breeze seems to rustle more gently among the foliage; voices and bustle dies away; the nine o'clock bell at Belfast sounds faintly from the distance, and soon all is quiet and we sink to rest with the music from the pavilion gently leading the senses captive into slumberland.

NO. 2.

Sunday Morning, August 12.

It is late before the cottages are astir, and but few of us have seen the glorious sunrise across the bay in the Castine distance. It is our lazy morning, when we turn over and take just one more nap before waking to con-to welcome her arrival. The passengers disembark, the bell strikes, the plank is drawn in, the lines cast off, with a parting salute the steamer plows on her upriver route, the crowd disperses and all is quiet again.

Soon comes the ting-a-ling of the morning bell summoning to religious worship at the stand, and under the shade of the beautiful grove with Gods pure air and light and influence within and around, the hymns and prayers of prayer and devotion go out to the Great Father, and thus ends the morning at Northport, ushering in a day of peace and quiet and loveliness surpassed nowhere on our broad land.

"THEY SAY!"

The SEA BREEZE says this thing is about played out and the less "they say" about it the better.

That the fog down to "Bar Harbor" has been so thick a dude could lean up against it without falling off.

That the sleepers are crowded in some cottages already, and next week they expect to pile them in crosswise o'nights.

That the Billy G. item struck hard all around in general.

That somebody ought to be sufficiently public spirited to send off some fireworks to-night, and we echo the say.

That the Waverley wasn't illuminated last Saturday night. Trot out the candles Bro. B.

There is trouble again at Bar Harbor. The waiter girls are better looking than the tony ladies from the west.

If the weather holds fair next Thursday will see the biggest crowd ever known in Northport.

The camp-meeting comes seven days too early.

That our operetta last week took well among the young folks. Well, a "little nonsense now and then" &c.,

That some of our cottagers and tenters must be more careful in regard to throwing out refuse on the ground.

That some of the girls aboard were awfully frightened when the Acadia thumped on a rock near the wharf Tuesday, but she slid off as gracefully as a mermaid.

That "O, my!" is the popular feminine exclamation this season.

That lobster close time is on but somehow that toothsome crustacean "will pop up."

That is, the girls say, these moonlight evening are, O my!—just mag.

The Bangor Commercial says: That on excursions the royalty sit in one end of the tug, by their own immaculate selves.—That they will have distinction, even if it is only the width of a tug boat.—That a special species of clams is to be propagated to make chowders for these bright lights of common-school "culchur."—That the occupants of "Boriobool-agma cottage" Northport, are a festive lot.—That the festivities are hard on the furniture.—That it is quiet enough around there to hear a house fall down.—That Bucksport girls are good male impersonators.—That "Papa F." gathered in a peck of shekels at the Can.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 18, 1883.

GEO. E. BRACKETT, Editor.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

The musical entertainment here last week may be considered to some extent a test case. Upon its success or failure hinged several things in the near future. It was a success and in more than one particular. It was successful in that it proved that a huge crowd is not necessarily a noisy nor an ill-mannered one. We have yet to hear of a single disagreeable occurrence during the day and connected therewith.

It also demonstrated that Northport is naturally a great center for massing excursionists, as we have all the requisites of plenty of room and shade, salt air, pure water, location unequalled, and means of direct, quick and cheap transportation far superior to any other seaside resort in Maine. We speak advisedly when we say this.

Again it shows there is a grand opening here for somebody with a good share of vim, push and enterprise to carry out a series of entertainments annually, which will furnish unobjectionable amusements to the masses, add to the legitimate business and prosperity of the place, and be a success pecuniarily to those investing their time and money.

Now who will push on the movement so auspiciously opened. Private individuals will not probably do so, and the public naturally turn to such corporations as have the means, and as would be most likely to be benefitted. In this case such a corporation exists in the Boston & Bangor Stm. Co. There is an opening for them to make Northport to their company what the Maine Central R. R. Co. have made Lake Maranocook. It is unnecessary for us to enlarge on this point. Any one talking the matter into consideration and knowing the conditions can easily understand. Gentleman of the Co., here is your opportunity. Will you take advantage of it.

CAMP-MEETING. The annual Camp-meeting of the Association will be held here, commencing next Monday, 20th inst., and continue through the week. All the necessary arrangements have been made for the care and comfort of the crowd.

Rev. C. A. Plummer will preside, with a large body of able speakers from the clergy of the conference. There will probably be several noted speakers from outside the State, and the high character of the meetings will be fully sustained.

Howard Grant of Winterport will have charge of police regulations, with an able force of deputies, and as heretofore the best of order will be maintained on and around the Grounds.

We expect to issue our next week's edition in time for distribution on the Grounds, Thursday and Friday. Parties interested will govern themselves accordingly.

The Str. Cambridge will make a moonlight excursion here from Bangor, Hampden, Winterport and Bucksport next Tuesday evening, the proceeds to go towards defraying the cost of repairing our wharf, and we trust our upriver friends will give us a benefit. The Bangor band will furnish music. Leave Bangor at 3 P. M. arriving at Northport at about 6:30 P. M. Leaving Northport at 7 P. M. for an excursion down the bay. The Str. will leave Northport on the return trip at 10 o'clock P. M. This being on the full of the moon the trip cannot fail to be delightful and pleasant.

WAVELETS.

All ready for camp-meeting.

F. H. Francis, Main street, Belfast, is closing out his stock of canvas shoes, at cost.

The spiritual camp-meeting at Temple Heights is in operation and will continue over Sunday.

Clear View cottage illuminated last Saturday evening with cottage name transparency, and will continue.

During campmeeting week the barge Clifford will run every day between here and Bangor and upriver towns.

Parties wanting notices of any kind inserted in next weeks paper, must furnish them by Wednesday forenoon, at latest.

The biblical illustrations most frequently seen at the Grounds during the large hours of the A. M., are the Rebeccas at the well.

The attendance at the skating rink is large. The Monroe band has been engaged to furnish music during Camp-meeting week.

If the weather continues as at this writing, and no rain falls before the middle of next week, we shall all be obliged to eat our peck of—dust.

We shall give a finely illustrated letter next week descriptive of the Chateaugay chasm, the most beautiful section of the Adirondack region in New York.

A jolly party of a score or more excursionists, led by water to Capt. Burgess', on the east side of the river, Belfast, Monday, indulged in a picnic supper, and returned by moonlight.

Most of our readers remember the genial Rev. John Allen, popularly termed Campmeeting John, who was here last season. He has attended 337 campmeetings. Make ours the 338, Bro. Allen.

Our aboriginal resident Soacalexis who is located at the "châin" says he is well pleased with his season at Northport, and will probably pitch his wigwam here and bring his squaw and papooses another year.

A large sabbath school is held in the Rockland society cottage after morning service each Sabbath. It is made up of the regular Northport Sunday school, John S. Hill, supt., and such persons on the Grounds as wish to go.

C. O. Macomber and son, Belfast, have brought down their fleet of row boats, twenty in number, and located them very conveniently at the wharf. Their new style catamaran yacht is creating quite an interest. She promises to be a fast sailer.

Our reporter will probably make the round of the society cottages and tents Wednesday morning. If some one in each will have ready the name of tent-master, and other matters worth mentioning, it will insure correctness and forward his labors materially.

We trust the town authorities, and the officers of the association will take prompt measures to stamp out at once and so effectually it will be remembered, any attempts which may be made by any parties on, off, or around the Grounds, to sell intoxicating liquors, either from pockets, in stables, tents, or anywhere else. An example would have a potent effect.

We are really not in the recipe business but the following is so seasonable we insert it, et punctuatim, et literatim:

Jerry Brooke, Me., Aug. 13, 1883.
Mr. Editor—I see you have a big crowd at Northport and as people generally like Apple Sawse I send you a receipt for mine. Pair quarter and cutt the quarters opin; put intwo a large bole or pudin dish; sprinkle Shugar between the layers; pour in a cup of Water; cover with a plate and bake in a slow Uvon for several hours. You can tell the gals that this is the way my son Bije likes it.

AUNT BETSEY.

Poplar cottage on So. Shore can be rented camp-meeting week. Enquire of H. C. Marden, or Ed Colby, High st., Belfast.

The wharf line-taker's strike has ended. The Str. company did the square thing by them, and all is now pleasant at the landings.

Capt. Babbidge of Schr. E. L. Warren took his family and a party of friends cruising around the bay Thursday, and a pleasant time was experienced.

There was a very pleasant dance at Cunningham's hall, Thursday evening. Another is booked for Tuesday evening next week. Admission 50 cts; ladies free.

By the shying of a horse on the Belfast road last Monday a carriage was overturned and a young lady, whose name we did not learn, was quite severely injured.

If somebody don't cut off the limbs from the willows by the roadside, at the foot of the big hill, there will be a collision of carriages thereabout and nobody to blame.

Mrs. A. L. Damon's cottage on So. Shore has an interior decorated in a novel and pleasing style. Over 1,000 different specimens of wall paper have been used on the walls and ceiling.

In addition to the regular, permanent, wooden, society cottage some fifteen in number, we notice the following society tents are already erected in the circle:—Jackson, Camden, So. Orrington, Nealeys Corner, Belfast, and Winterport.

E. L. Whittier is building a landing at his Seaside Pavilion on Northport avenue just below Belfast, and his grounds are open for pleasure seekers. A wharf additional has also been built at the ice houses near by Murphy's point, at Little river.

An excursion, the last of next week, from Bangor and the up-river towns and Belfast, Northport, and along shore by Steamer Penobscot, to Squirrel and Mouse Islands and vicinity, is being agitated. If arrangements are perfected we will give full particulars in next week's issue.

Our yacht fleet are nearly all in the harbor to remain off and on for the rest of the season. We report the Sea Breeze, Capt. I. K. Clark, Belfast; Gertrude, Capt. Webster, Bucksport; Electric Light, Capt. Condon, Bristol; Commodore (schooner), Capt. Mahoney, Northport; No Name, Capt. Macomber, Belfast; Edna, Capt. Roix, Belfast.

It is suggested to cottage owners to put their names on their cottage doors. By so doing it will be easy for their friends to locate them, and also of great convenience to the town assessors in levying the taxes on the proper person. As it is, it is hard for them to decide who is the owner, in many cases, and sometimes perhaps the tax which is assessed on Smith belongs to Jones.

Our George pays his respects to the Bangor Commercial briefly, thus:—

The Commercial of the 15th in its column of "They say," remarks, "That Our George left Northport, 'Oh, so quick! last Sunday.'" As "Our George" was at Bar Harbor, all the time between Thursday and Monday, he must have been even "sooner" than the Commercial man had him.—He does not leave places "quick," though he sometimes touches then on it.

OUR GEORGE.

The Bar Harbor Tourist says:—

There is a bright little summer resort on the coast of Maine that aspires to be as stylish as Bar Harbor. It proposes even to build a mountain railway as soon as they can raise the money with which to build a mountain.

No, thank you. We have no aspirations of the sort. "Style" is not currency here. We are of the quiet, peaceful, staid, reasonable pleasure loving sort. But the mountain,—it's all built on the eternal, ledgy foundations. Come down a peg, sometime, and see us.

PERSONALITIES.

Nothing personal in "personalities."—Quite a sprinkling of clergymen have arrived.

—Dr. S. W. Bragg, of Lincoln, is stopping here a few weeks.—B. F. Aiken and family, of Ellsworth, are visiting at B. F. Farnham's on North Ave.—Dr. Lombard and family, of Belfast, are at their summer residence on No. Shore.—Mrs. Maggie Gould, of Bangor, has been visiting her friend Miss May Cutter, on So. Shore.—O. R. Tweed, of Boston, is again vacationing at Northport, at the Brown cottage in Bay View square.—P. M. Thurlow and wife, of Lewiston, are visiting Mrs. Currier.—Mrs. J. G. Proctor and family, and Misses Lura Clay and Myra Withee, all of Waterville, are guests at Maynard cottage.—

F. P. Eames family, of Belfast, are occupying their new Grove cottage near Merithew square.—Miss Lizzie Kenney, of Boston, and Gracie Burgess, of Belfast, are domiciled in Lilliputian cottage, Park row this week.—Chas. Beale and family, of Hudson, are in the Beale cottage.—Capt. E. E. Pendleton and family, of Belfast, and "Rod" Rich and family, of Thorndike, are revelling in clams and seaweed at the narrows on Long Island.—W. H. Atkinson of Chelsea, Mass. is visiting Mrs. Hook at Tallyho cottage.—Mr. Jones' family of Hampden, are in their cottage Abercrombie, on Clinton Av.—W. K. Morison of Belfast, H. E. Bowditch of Augusta, and Dr. Hoene of Watertown, have been cruising along shore in the yacht Edna.—Miss Hattie Howe of Boston, with her mother and family, have moved into their new cottage in the Hill pasture.—Misses Phebe Dunbar, Ida Burgess and Lizzie Dodge of Belfast, and Nellie Hopkins of Lewiston, are spending their vacation in the Pote cottage on North Shore.—The Cape Elizabeth Sentinel facetiously remarks "he tinkers struck into Penobscot bay last Sunday." In other words the parents and family of Mrs. Babbidge, "Tinkers," arrived and are stopping with her on So. Shore.—

Frank N. Fowler and others of Searsport have leased Mrs. J. W. Brown's cottage on Bay View square.—R. J. Libby of Bangor, is at Strickland cottage.—Levi Murch, and J. P. Forest of Bangor, are stopping here.—Mr. Fred Fletcher, late of Castine, is writing up Northport for the Boston Journal.—Capt. Coombs of So. Shore has hitched up a pair of pacers that don't take anybody's dust on Northport avenue.—Henry Snow and wife, of Orrington, have been visiting at Cherry Grove cottage.—Clara A. Wingate, of Natick, Mass. and W. R. Clark and wife, of East Corinth are guests of Newell Mansfield, So. Shore.—E. G. Crabtree and wife, of Chelsea, Mass. are spending their vacation at Mrs. A. M. Chapman's at the Cove.—Mrs. Billings and Mrs. Pullen, of Dexter, are at Maynard cottage.—

H. P. Sargent and family, of Brewer, are at their cottage on Bay view square, with Mrs. C. S. Bragg son and daughter, Dorchester, Mass. and Miss Porter, of Bangor, as guests.—E. M. Blanding, of the Bangor Whig, pulled the Sea Breeze lathstring at Clear View, Thursday.—The following party are stopping at the Abbott cottage, Griffin st: Messrs: S. I. Abbott, A. F. Abbott, W. H. K. Abbott, F. W. Noble, and H. E. Gale, Mrs. Fred Kelley, and Misses M. E. Abbott, Flora Judkins, Ida M. Knight, Lang, Drummond, and Kelley, all of Waterville.—The gallant Capt. of the Commodore rescued a boat load of ladies from the supposed perils of a choppy sea near the bluff Thursday.—J. P. Ingraham and wife, Miss Margie Ingraham, of Rockland, Miss L. A. Ingraham, of Chelsea, Mass. and Capt. R. T. Emery and wife and Miss Lydia Spring, of Belfast, have been visiting at Beechwood cottage.

A WHIFF FROM THE COVE.

As time rolls on, the beauties of the Cove grow more attractive to the weary residents of the hot cities and gradually they gather at the different houses along the shore to while away the time in amusements of various kinds. When one has leisure, it is surprising to see how many different ways of improving every moment, can be found. There are the toothsome cunners to be caught, clams to be dug, not forgetting the lobsters, which prove a great attraction to all. Then there is the nice beach where any fine day the ladies and children can be seen sporting amid the waves. It is surprising to see with what rapidity the fair sex learn to boldly dash among the breakers, and battle with old Neptune.

Amid all the attractions of this beautiful spot we must not forget the hospitable homes where so many happy hours are passed. Foremost among these is Cummings' House which, no doubt, is familiar to you all. When one has received a welcome from their obliging hostess, they know they are welcome in every sense of the word. If you listen some of these beautiful evenings you will hear music; perhaps gay, perhaps sad, as suits the mood of our genial skipper; or a song from one of the ladies, who is ever ready to favor us with "Bonnie Sweet Bessie;" or again you will hear the piano, accompanied by the well-known strains of Prof. Kendall's musical violin. One can, in fancy, see the merry party tripping the "light fantastic toe" to the favorite Dream Waltz. Certainly no where can be found a merrier party, or more obliging hostess. We know no better way to show our appreciation than by enjoying to the best of our ability the good things placed before us thereby proving the adage "Actions speak louder than words." We extend a cordial invitation to all to visit the cove and its many attractions. Guests registered at Cummings' house this week are H. A. Appleton and wife; G. B. Wiggin and wife; Miss Alice Hatch and brother, Master Louis Hatch; Langdon Freese and sister, Miss Lizzie Freese, all of Bangor. Capt. H. E. Buck of Bucksport; A. A. St. Clair, and Nathan Allen of Hope.

TENTERS OUT. The great army of tenters are already beginning to arrive, and even at this writing the woods are "full of em". What the condition will be by Monday next we leave time to decide. There are now over fifty canvass walls distributed all over the grounds in the shady, pleasant places. Among them we note:—Alfred Flood and family, of Waterville, on Clinton court; Mrs. Asa Davis and family, and Mrs. R. Burnham of Oldtown, on George St.; David Hasty Jr. and family of Jackson, in the grove; Rufus and Albert Condon of Belfast, on the So. Shore; Mrs. W. T. Partridge and family, and Mrs. Wm. Lincoln both of Waterville, back of Park row; Mrs. J. T. Trundy and Mrs. Otis Barney of Searsport, off Clinton ave.; Misses Jackson and Wood of Belfast, in the grove, off Broadway; J. D. Gould and others of Jackson in grove; Miss Harriman and others of Belfast in the grove; Mrs. D. M. True and family on Clinton ave., and others too numerous to mention.

Old Orchard covered itself all over with glory last Monday night when it was illuminated by electric lights. Some 10,000 persons were present.

The Rockland Courier-Gazette says:—G. L. Farrand and family are at Northport.—Arthur Berry, Will T. Banks and W. B. Fossick, are at Northport.—Mrs. Abbie W. Keating, one of the C.-G. composers, who has ill been for some weeks, is at Northport taking a greatly needed rest. Her mother and daughter Edith accompany her.

The annual meeting of the Campground Association will be held on the Grounds next week.

Three Monroe boys, Bert Mosman, Frank Nye and Horace Dolloff are making music at the pavilion.

Lincolnton pond has been stocked with black bass, which is good news for Northport summer residents, as said pond is only a short distance away.

The Belfast Journal has the following items referring to seaside matters:

Mr. Amos Clement, of this city, proprietor of the Seaside House at Seal Harbor, Mt. Desert, has one hundred guests at his house, and is daily obliged to refuse applicants for want of room.

A New Yorker while fishing in Tilden's Pond recently caught a perch, and as he was hauling it in it was seized by a pickerel, and both were safely landed in the boat. This is a fish story, but a true one.

A Main street merchant recently went to his cottage at Northport, taking with him a basket well supplied with good things. Turning his horse loose he sought the flats for the festive clam. The horse found the basket, which had been carelessly left out of doors, and devoured the contents.

Our George says:—The cod is caught in the same way that the small boy catches apples, by hooking them, with this difference—one bites after it is hooked and the other is hooked after it bites. There is a line connected with the hook in both cases, though the lyn' of the small boy generally gets tangled up more as he reels it off than does the cod line.

The first camp-meeting of the Spiritualists at their new ground, Temple Heights, in Northport, will begin on Friday of this week and continue three days. Lumber for three cottages is now on the grounds. Since the purchase of this place it has been ascertained that a company were negotiating for it for the purpose of speculation, considering it a desirable location for summer cottages.

The bay has been full of yachts lately, as old Penobscot is one of the best sailing grounds in this or any other country. Among those here a few days ago was a yawl rigged yacht, which came in from the eastward under full sail. She moved lazily until she got a puff of wind when just above the monument, and then she started off like a scared deer. She proved to be the White Cap, owned by David Rice, of Boston, for which port she sailed Tuesday.

At Bar Harbor there were queer specimens among the men, and we wondered if Forepaugh had not emptied some of the cages of his menagerie before leaving Maine. One of our party pointed out the Wild Man of Borneo and another was certain he had discovered the long sought for missing link. To the remark that a majority of these young men looked like blank fools, the quick response came, "That is just what they are." The Knickerbocker dress, which is almost universally worn, is well adapted to certain athletic sports, and if the wearer be a manly man, with no nonsense about him, it is not unbecoming. But to see spindle-shanked youths and animated beer barrels dawdling about the ladies on hotel verandas in this sort of rig is enough to make one sea sick. Add banged hair and you have a complete picture of the Bar Harbor dude. If there are any dudenesses we did not see them.

Shall we have another musical entertainment here this season, say the week after camp-meeting? What say Messrs. Torrens and Wasgatt?

THE SEA BREEZE.

Northport, Maine.

SEASIDE SEASON, 1883.

ABOUT NORTHPORT.

HISTORICAL AND DESCRIPTIVE.

It is but a few years since our quiet, cozy, pleasant, little seaside resort at Northport, where old ocean rolls in his waves at our feet, and the cooling breezes sigh through shady groves on the shores of the grand old Penobscot bay, was little more than an unbroken wilderness.

In 1848 the East Maine Methodist C. M. Association located here, purchasing 25 acres of land. In August, 1849, the first Camp-meeting was held here, and for nearly twenty-five years it was occupied only a week each year for meetings, with no indication that it would ever become a popular summer resort.

But with the growing fashion for spending summer vacations at the seaside, the attention of the people in this section of the State was turned toward Northport, as a desirable place for summer residences. The pioneer cottage was built in 1869, and several purchases of land have been made since, and the whole is enclosed under the Society's control.

As the place became better known, and its attractions of pure air, cleanliness, quietude and all other virtues which go to make up a pleasant and needful place of resort, were fully understood, it began to grow, and during the past five years it has become so thickly studded with cottages as to resemble a village, while all along the shore, on either side of the Grounds, the movement has kept pace, and the shore, almost from Belfast city to several miles beyond the Grounds, is thickly dotted with cottages of summer residents, many of them being costly and valuable as well as stylish. There are 175 cottages on and in the immediate vicinity of the Grounds, more being built annually.

Real estate has increased in value wonderfully, until what was supposed and valued as the poorest part of Northport is the most valuable and pays the most taxes.

The view from the Grounds seaward and from the cottages along the shore is beautiful, for the whole broad expanse of Penobscot Bay lies before us—a bay which travelers say rivals the far-famed Bay of Naples, dotted here and there with the white sails of lumber-laden vessels from Bangor, or swift flying sail-boats, and daily with majestic steamers plowing past and sending billowy, surfy waves breaking with hollow roar against the shore, while at the south the islands stand guard to keep out the rough Atlantic storms. Across to eastward is the village of Castine, ancient historical and modern educational ground, while at the north lies Brigadier's Island and the villages of Stockton and Searsport, with the spires and harbor of Belfast in the near distance.

The facilities for recreation are fine. There is good bathing and rowing, and fine drives in the neighborhood, Belfast being near and Mt. Percival or the Bluff only a mile off, from which can be obtained a splendid view of the scenery in the neighborhood; the sailing is safe and roomy, and the fishing privileges fine within a stone's throw of the shore.

One of the greatest advantages of Northport, as a summer resort, is the location and conveniences for reaching and leaving here at short notice. The Boston boats touch at the wharf daily to and from Boston and intermediate landings to Bangor. Small steamers ply daily to and from Bangor, Belfast, Castine and Islesboro, while hacks connect with the Me. Central R. R. at Belfast, a short distance up shore, from where trains leave twice a day for all parts of the country.

Waverley House,

Northport Camp-Ground, Me.

C. H. BUSWELL, Propr.

As Northport is beautifully situated on the Penobscot Bay, and has become one of the pleasantest and most popular Summer Resorts in Maine, the Waverley specially commends itself to the public.

A daily line of Steamers and excursion boats ply between this place and Boston, Bangor and all points on the river and bay. Excellent stage accommodations connect with all passenger trains to and from Belfast. First-class board by day or week at reasonable rates, and no pains will be spared to make the Waverley first-class in all its appointments.

A first-class baker will be employed so that families living or tenting on the Grounds can be accommodated with all the bread and beans wanted.

If you want plenty of shade, cooling breezes, quiet and ease, reasonable prices, convenient and quick transportation, fine sailing, boating and fishing, and to breathe in the pure, salt, invigorating sea air, come to Northport, and visit the Waverley.

And for the hundredth time pour taffy in your ear."

You will find, my dear boy, that the dearly prized kiss
Which with rapture you snatched from the half-willing miss,
Is sweeter by far than the legalized kisses
You give the same girl when you've made her a Mrs.

A WOMAN NEVER GROWS OLD.

One evening this summer, while down at Cape May,
A bachelor and spinster walked out on the pier;
She was dressed a-la-fashion, and appeared very gay,
While her escort seemed solemn,—in fact,
quite severe.
At last, after talk of the ocean and weather,
She remarked: "What makes you so cross and so cold?"
You were full of fun when we were children together."
"Very true," he replied, "but I'm now growing old."
"Growing old! I really don't know what that means,"
She said with a laugh, as she toyed with her fan;
"Why, I feel as young as I did in my teens—
But a woman don't live half as fast as a man."
"Maria, you're right; for, if you remember,
We were each twenty-four the last time that we met;
That was just twenty-one years ago last September,
And I hear that you have not reached thirty,
yet."

For all matters pertaining to tent lots and grounds, hiring, renting, leasing, or locating, call on R. A. Rich, at Clinton court.

Steamer Katahdin will make an excursion
here from Bangor and river towns Monday, under the auspices of the So. Newburgh cornet band.

We learn from dame rumor, that we have had just the least little bit of a specimen dude here lately. Too bad. Poor dude! Go home. You belong somewhere else.

The nobby yacht Gertrude has arrived again and is ready for excursions. For particulars inquire of the master aboard, or of the owner Capt. Farnham at his cottage on North avenue.

Rev. J. B. Gould, of Newton Mass.,
preached a powerful sermon here last Sabbath to an unusually large audience. Sermon tomorrow, Sunday, by Rev. C. A. Southard of Rockland.

The Jackson cottage on Main St. is being finished this week. It is owned by a quartette of Jacksonites, viz:—J. W. Wallace, Nathan White, E. D. Tasker, and J. H. Cook, and will be occupied by them and their families.

The largest excursion that ever came over the Knox & Lincoln railroad was here Monday, on the Steamer Katahdin from Rockland.
It numbered over 1,000, and was accompanied by the Waldoboro and the Damariscotta bands.
Come again neighbors.

There were some fine illuminations last Saturday evening, but it was not so general as it should have been. The Mahoney house on the main road was the most prominently illuminated, and several cottages presented a very pretty picture in their Japanese lantern settings. The S. B. hopes to view the illumination tonight from the bay.

BUILDING, is not wholly finished, and the sound of the saw and hammer still makes music on the shore. Rev. Mr. Jewell is building a cottage near Clinton court.—A. A. Barstow of Brewer is erecting a cottage just off Broadway.
—W. W. Doane of Brewer has just finished a large ell, &c., to his cottage on Park row.
—Orrington Center society cottage is being clapboarded and finished up.—Capt. Coombs on So. Shore is finishing a stable.—Mrs. A.
J. Sawyer is repairing and painting her cottage on Main St.—The Jackson cottage on Main St. will soon be habitable. Several cottages are being painted and striped, and there is a general "slicking up" preparatory to receiving the crowd next week.

The impromptu concert at the Waverley dining hall last week was a very pleasant and successful affair, and the thanks of all concerned are due to those who so kindly volunteered their services in making it so. The leading features were solos by Prof. Torrens, Miss Nellie Dinsmore of Boston, Amos Abbott, Waterville; whistling selections by Miss Jessie Smith, Waterville; piano solo, Miss Dodge; accompanist Mrs. Kate Smith, Waterville.
There is a feeling, which we hope may cryst-allise into results, that a series of somewhat similar musical entertainments could be carried out this season.
